University City Symphony Orchestra Season Opens on October 16 with “A Taste of Italy”

The University City Symphony Orchestra (UCSO) celebrates its 56th season with an international music theme. This vibrant group of musicians has been given the nickname “World’s Most Adventurous Community Orchestra.” The 50 member UCSO, led by conductor and music director Dr. Leon Burke III, is known for playing lesser known pieces by well-known composers and great music by lesser known composers. UCSO has attracted guest artists that include Mexican violin virtuoso Manuel Ramos, and St. Louis Symphony Orchestra violinist Silvian Itcovici. Concerts are always free to the public as designated in UCSO’s original mission.

Would you like to become involved? First chairs are professionals and others are amateurs. UCSO always needs string musicians and is currently looking to add bass players. Volunteers for non-musical assistance are also needed. For information, please visit ucso.org, call 314.344.3382, or visit UCSO on Facebook.
